COUNCIL ACTS OVER EYESORE

By Jamie Brooks

COUNCIL bosses want to buy an "eyesore" former hotel and offices in Banbury town centre, give it a facelift and turn it into housing.

To force the issue, Cherwell District Council has applied for a compulsory purchase order to buy the boarded-up Crown House, in Bridge Street, and then convert it into 33 affordable flats.

It said it had to act, after failing to reach a deal with owner Slighe Limited.

Compulsory purchase bid to turn building into homes

The council's lead member for Banbury Brighter Futures, John Donaldson, said: "It is a real eyesore. It has been like that for 20-odd years.

"We have had problems with rough sleepers in the building for a while. It is just falling into disrepair."

Mr Donaldson said it was a "shame" the council had felt the need for a compulsory purchase order. He refused to give the cost of the action - because of commercial confidentiality.

He added: "We want to make best use of it and turn it into something useable. And social housing is in demand at the moment."

The council is under massive pressure to provide more social housing and recently cut its 4,000-applicant-long waiting list by 2,800.

It said those who had been removed from the list had had "little or no chance" of getting a council home. Crown House was previously owned by Hunt Edmonds Brewery and was last used as offices.

Bower and Bailey, agents for the owners, had yet to comment at the time of going to press.

Banbury Civic Society chairman Rob Kinchin-Smith welcomed the move.

He said: "It is good to see the council taking action to create some much-needed housing.

"Everybody will be pleased to see the building put back into use, even though it is not an architectural gem.

"It is even more horrendously ugly at the moment, with pigeons flying in and out."

He said: "It is interesting to see the council is going to invest in housing.

"Previously there had been proposals to knock down Crown House and build another shopping centre on the site.

"I don't think Banbury needs yet another large retail centre. The council's latest plan seems like a reasonable use of the building."

Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government Eric Pickles will make a decision on the order.

If granted, the scheme - for one- and two-bedroom flats - will need planning permission for a 2014 start.

■ Motorists cope with extreme driving conditions as the big freeze continues

Snow brings more chaos

SNOW, ice and floods caused extreme driving conditions for motorists in Oxfordshire on Monday.

The extreme weather was blamed for a string of crashes, jackknifed lorries and worsening potholes.

And forecasters warned the cold snap was not over yet.

The worst delays on Monday were caused by two lorries which crashed on the A34 at the Peartree Interchange at 2.30am.

The northbound carriageway was closed until 8am while the wreckage was cleared.

The A4260 Oxford Road, in Kidlington, also closed in both directions when a lorry jackknifed on the Sainsbury's roundabout at Frieze Way and Bicester Road.

It closed at around 4.30am but the problem was cleared by mid morning. One lane of the M40 was also closed for a short time in the morning for emergency pothole repairs.

Work was carried out on the southbound carriageway between Junction Seven for Thame and Junction Six for Watlington.

Snow ploughs were hard at work on the A42 in the morning trying to clear a path for traffic.

By Jamie Brooks

On the buses, Stagecoach also had to adjust several of its morning services due to snow.

Buses serving Charlbury, Stonesfield, Fawler, Combe, New Yatt and Duns Tew were all affected.

As the snow forced to slush and rain, ten of Oxfordshire's waterways were put on flood alert.

While the River Thames was rising, the Environment Agency was not anticipating major concerns this week.

Spokeswoman Hayley Willoughby said: "The River Thames is rising slowly but we are not expecting flood warnings.

"We are expecting a bit more rain but it will be minimal.

"We will continue monitoring the Thames as it responds."

Meanwhile, motorists driving through Farmoor faced five-inch-deep flood water on Oxford Road in both directions.

Steve Harrison, owner of Botley Windscreens in Cumnor Road, Farmoor, said: "It was passable, you just had to give way to other traffic and not drive straight through. Traffic was absolutely fine – it was not backing up."

A snow plough, busy clearing a dual carriageway

Weather forecasters predicted a thaw today. Sarah Holland, spokesman for the Met Office, said one centimetre of snow had fallen overnight in Oxford on Sunday night, but up to seven centimetres in Little Rissington, on the Oxfordshire/Gloucestershire border.

She said: "It was quite a short, sharp spell. However, it will remain very cold with temperatures struggling to get much above freezing."

A spokesman for Oxfordshire County Council, Marcus Mabberley, said bad weather had created potholes but he was unable to say if there were more than usual in Oxfordshire.

Mr Mabberley said: "Cold and wet weather does obviously have an effect on roads.

"We carry out regular routine inspections of the roads we are responsible for.

"We would encourage the public to report any potholes they come across in the county to us."

To report a pothole, call 0845 3101111.

Addict who preyed on friends

A DRUG addict told a friend that marks on his arms were from cancer treatment – to con him out of treasured gold rings.

Mark Weaver, 42 told friend-of-30-years David Robertson that he was dying of cancer and only had 12 months to live.

A judge was told he showed him marks on his arm, caused by repeated use of heroin, saying they were symptoms of his illness.

He first asked for £20 to travel to hospital in London.

Then, on September 24, he arrived in the middle of the night, saying he needed to use the bathroom.

When Mr Robertson's back was turned, he took three gold rings, worth £450, one of which had great sentimental value to its owner. Weaver pleaded guilty to four counts of theft and two counts of fraud, all involving people described as "extremely vulnerable" at Oxford Crown Court.

Weaver, of The High Furlong, Banbury, preyed on those he knew well or had met recently and won their trust by telling lies, a judge was told.

Weaver also convinced 78-year-old Pamela Timberlake, who he had recently met, to pay him £175 to paint her house and fix her TV.

Weaver marched her to a cashpoint on October 22 and got her to hand over the money but never even started the work.

He called on acquaintance Roy Burrow at home on August 18 and told him he needed to borrow his BlackBerry mobile phone, which he then stole.

Trevor Lampitt was also convinced to hand over £21 on September 22 and Andrew Johnston's BlackBerry was taken from his house on August 12.

Defending Weaver, Graham Bennett said his client had been in the grip of a heroin addiction since the end of 2011.

He said: "These were all people who were known to the defendant in one way or another, as acquaintances or as friends.

"The way the theft took place shows a breach of trust between the defendant and the victim.

"Mr Weaver, looking back, hangs his head in shame at what he did by breaching trust between the two parties."

Judge Thomas Corrie sentenced him to nine months, suspended for 12 months, for each count to run concurrently.

He also imposed a 12-month supervision requirement and six-month drug rehabilitation course.

He said: "Although the amounts of money were not large, the impact on the victims has been very significant and distressing.

"All of them were known to you and known to you to be vulnerable.

"It is a horrid catalogue of shabby betrayal of people who knew and trusted you, but you exploited."

Sir Tony calls for hospitals clarity

BANBURY MP Sir Tony Baldry has said public confusion over what services hospitals can offer could present a risk to life.

During a debate on emergency services in Parliament last week he called for national standards to be introduced to give clarity.

The North Oxfordshire MP said: "We need total clarity about what people can expect from major trauma units, and what is meant by the terms 'accident and emergency department', 'urgent care centre' and 'major injuries unit'.

"We could then be confident about the protocols that the ambulance services use – when they are dealing with major incidents – and patients would then know when it would be more appropriate for them to be directed to the major trauma units.

"People would also be clearer about when they ought not to be bothering the accident and emergency department at all, but should really be going to see their GP."

He also said the Hospital in Banbury should not be treated as an out-of-hours GP service.

Man is sent to prison after raids on shops

ANDREW Marshall, 27, of Samuelson Court, Banbury, admitted stealing an electric toothbrush and beauty products worth £75 from Wilkinsons in Bridge Street, Banbury, while subject to a six-month suspended sentence.

Appearing before Banbury Magistrates, he was given 24-week prison sentence.

He also admitted to the court that he stole food and alcohol worth £533.27 from the Co-operative Store in Chipping Norton on December 24 last year.

He was given a consecutive six-week prison sentence for this offence

Banking boss gets bonus of £800,000

THE Banbury-based boss of the taxpayer-funded Royal Bank of Scotland will be paid a bonus of almost £800,000 just weeks after his bank was fined £391m for rate-rigging.

Chief executive Stephen Hester – who owns the 350-acre Broughton Grange estate near Banbury – will be given about £780,000 in shares next month as part of a reward scheme for his performance in 2010.

Mr Hester said last week he would stay to “finish the job” at the bank, despite damning evidence from US and UK authorities over its role in the Libor scandal.

The bank said 21 staff were involved in attempting to manipulate interbank lending rates from 2006 to as recently as November 2010.

Photographer walks free

A NEWSPAPER photographer has escaped punishment after taking pictures of jury members outside Oxford Crown Court.

Lucy Ford, of Smith Street, Warwick, was working for the Banbury Guardian and was hauled into court by Judge Ian Pringle to explain her actions.

The 34-year-old said she accidentally took pictures of two jury members and then asked them to identify a photo of a defendant.

Judge Pringle said there was potential this could have intimidated a juror, which could have been contempt of court, but he found there was no intent and so would not impose a punishment.

Landlord tells of warnings and racist taunts U-turn over mosque follows fire threats

By Tom Jennings

A MOSQUE will not open in Chipping Norton after its landlord received threats that it would be burnt to the ground.

The town's muslim community had been celebrating after they won permission to open the permanent home on Monday of last week.

But now their 79-year-old landlord, Georg Wissinter, has received a threatening phone call and pulled out of the deal.

He said: “Someone rang up and said if you go ahead with the mosque, then it will get very hot. They were saying they would burn it down.”

“I have got people in the flat above the proposed mosque. I cannot take the risk.”

Mr Wissinter said he had only received one phone call but word of mouth around the town suggested the sentiment was more widespread.

He said: “There is more than one person.”

Mr Wissinter, who is German, said racists had constantly accused him of being a Nazi in the 35 years he has been living in the town.

He said people had mimicked the Nazi goose step march in front of him and accused him of being a member of the SS.

Mr Wissinter said: “I did expect something to happen because of the application. But I did not expect them to want to burn it down.”

The application would have seen a vacant shop in Hitchmans Mews, off West Street, converted into the mosque.

The change of use application would have seen the new mosque open from sunrise until one hour after sunset for ten-minute prayers, five times a day.

Chipping Norton's muslim community currently worships at the town hall on Fridays.

Applicant Tahirul Hasan, a Chipping Norton town councillor, said: “It is absolutely shocking. I did not expect this from our local community.

“No one has threatened me directly, but people are talking about it and the news is coming to me.”

Mr Hasan said he was worried about his own safety, especially as he is a taxi driver who receives late call-outs to remote locations.

He added: “I am not only working for the muslim community, I am working for the local community.

“I have lived here for 24 years and I am a councillor and a member of the Neighbourhood Action Group.”

Mr Hasan said he was talking to the muslim community to decide what to do next.

West Oxfordshire District Council, which granted planning permission for the mosque, received 28 letters of objections to the scheme and two in support.

But some of the comments were edited out of the agenda for the meeting by planning officers due to their “prejudiced” nature.

One objector said: “Chipping Norton is the quintessential English market town and as such it is attractive to tourists and visitors and most who live here.

“I would wish this English character to be preserved.”

Another objector said: “I think Chipping Norton is totally unsuitable for a mosque in the middle of a small market town. It will totally spoil the place.”

Police spokesman Craig Evry said: “Thames Valley Police is investigating a phone call made to a premises in Chipping Norton between February 2 and 4, which was alleged to be threatening in nature.

“No formal complaint has been made to police but the incident is being treated as a potential criminal offence and is being investigated.”

InBRIEF

Jury's not guilty verdict

■ A MAN has been cleared of child sex abuse and rape at Oxford Crown Court. David Manning, of Forgeaway, Banbury, was cleared of two counts of sexual abuse and eight counts of rape, relating to a child who cannot be named for legal reasons. The 45-year-old was also cleared of two counts of sexually abusing another child, who also cannot be named. On Friday a jury found him not guilty of the charges, which were alleged to have taken place between 2009 and 2011. Mr Manning broke down in the dock as the verdict was read out.

Cloudy2Clear Windows – Service With A Smile!

It's been a crazy few months for Cloudy2Clear Windows. The company which specialises in repairing windows which are steamed up, broken or damaged by replacing the panes – not the frames has grown rapidly as homeowners take advantage of their services.

Managing Director Trevor Skidmore feels that it's all about service. “Our product is simple. If your double glazing is misted up we can replace the glass at a fraction of the cost of a new window, in any type of frame, and with a new 5 year guarantee. But it's not just about saving people money, although that obviously helps. Many tradespeople have struggled since last year and I honestly feel that during the good times a minority perhaps didn't focus on customer care as much as they should have done. We make sure we turn up when we say we will, do the job the customer requires and leave their house as clean as a whistle. I often get comments back from customers on how they really didn't expect that sort of service which, in a way, is very sad for the service industry as a whole.”

Cloudy2Clear service the Oxford, Banbury & Abingdon areas and Trevor is finding that his approach is a major factor in his success. “The truth is that it's not just the personal satisfaction that I get from doing a good job but also it makes good business sense. I get a huge amount of business from friends and family of people I've done work for, which just goes to show how much a little bit of effort is appreciated.”

So, if your windows are steamed up, broken or damaged give Trevor a call for a free quotation on 0800 61 21 118 and he'll be happy to help!

Dad prepares for OX5 event after hospital cares for his daughter

It's charity pay-back for grateful father Richard

Richard Chinn plans to run the OX5 to raise charity cash after his daughter, Lily, was cared for by the Oxford Children's Hospital

A DAD is thanking staff at the Oxford Children's hospital, who went the extra mile to take care of his baby, by taking on five extra miles himself.

Richard Chinn has signed up for next month's OX5 run when he heard that it raises cash for the Headington hospital.

The 11th annual run will be held at Blenheim Palace, Woodstock, on Sunday, March 10.

The hospital cared for daughter Lily, now three, who was born with a cleft palate.

Mr Chinn, 38, from Banbury, said: "We knew nothing about clefts at the time, so it was a shock. But the day after she was born, there was someone there to talk to and help us out.

"The main problem was feeding. Babies usually suck on a bottle for milk but because there was a hole in the top of her mouth, she couldn't drink in the normal way.

"So we had to use special bottles, which was a bit difficult at first.

"Then she had an operation to close the gap when she reached eight months, so she didn't fall behind with her speech. She's three now and she is really good."

By Katriona Ormiston

Staff also helped her with speech therapy by visiting her school to watch how she was communicating with fellow toddlers.

Software engineer Mr Chinn is married to Ruth, 37. The couple have two children, Lily, three, and Jessica, two.

OX5 Run organisers hope to beat the £60,000 raised at last year's event as more than 600 runners have already signed up.

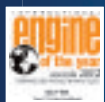

The cash will go towards a new eye scanner for babies and children, a Pneumscan machine – to measure lung function in children more easily – and a portable ventilator.

A more comfortable waiting area for parents with children in the high dependency unit is also being planned.

It costs £10 to enter the run, sponsored by recruitment firm Allen Associates, and participants are encouraged to raise £100 or more in sponsorship.

Beginners are welcome, but there are also trophies up for grabs for the more competitive.

The 'yarn bomber' strikes yet again

AS Valentine's Day approaches, love may be in the air – but in Chipping Norton yarn is everywhere else.

The town's mysterious "yarn bomber" has been helping the town celebrate a wide range of national days by decorating the area with appropriate knitted patterns.

And she has struck again as February 14 looms, this time decorating trees with lovely woollen hearts.

Chipping Norton resident Suzie Brown, 43, said: "We have been living here for five years and we have not seen her. So, it was nice to see her in action. She gave us a knitted heart.

"My son and I have often walked around the town and seen her works of art hanging here, there and everywhere. It brings a smile to our faces."

"Yarn bombing" is an American craze, which is also known as "urban knitting".

It is a form of street art that involves decorating a public space with patterns made from knitted or crocheted yarn.

Supplier in pledge over horse meat

FOOD suppliers have distanced themselves from claims horse meat could have been served up in Oxfordshire's schools and hospitals.

On Monday, Carillion Plc, which serves Oxfordshire's school and hospital meals service, said it offered "solid reassurance" its food had not been contaminated.

A spokesman said: "We work closely with our suppliers to ensure the soundness of our food-supply chain.

"All our suppliers have confirmed that they have not supplied us with products or ingredients that have been sourced from any of the meat suppliers cited by the Food Standards Agency and that all meat products do not contain DNA of any species other than that declared.

"In light of potential criminal and fraudulent activity in meat trading throughout Europe, and to offer an additional level of reassurance, Carillion will independently review the testing of meat samples in line with protocols recently announced by the Food Standards Agency."

The Food Standards Agency issued a warning to headteachers and hospital chiefs on the back of a refusal from the Government to give assurance hospitals and schools would not be drawn into the national scandal.

Carillion took over the contract for supplying primary and secondary school meals when it was outsourced by Oxfordshire County Council in July.

The council said it had no plans to look at its previous service.

A spokesman said: "There is nothing to suggest that there were any problems with our supplies at this time."

Retailer Aldi, which has a supermarkets in Banbury, as well as other branches in Oxford, Bicester and Carterton, is the latest big name to take action.

It withdrew its own-brand lasagne and spaghetti bolognese products from sale on Friday.

Oxfordshire Waste Partnership said unwanted frozen meals could be dumped in food bins with other cooked or uncooked waste.

Local police officer face trial over information sale allegations

AN Oxfordshire police officer will stand trial in July over allegations she sold personal information. Thames Valley PC Sugra Hanif, of Bretch Hill, Banbury, is accused of obtaining or disclosing personal data and conspiracy to commit misconduct in a public office. The 26-year-old appeared at Winchester Crown Court on Tuesday of last week, along with two other people. The trio are next due to appear at Winchester Crown Court for a plea and case management hearing on April 15, with a trial date set for July 29.

Trains to get a £20m update for disabled

A Chiltern 75 Class 165 Turbo train

TURBO diesel trains, used by Chiltern Railways, will get better facilities for disabled passengers as part of a £20m overhaul.

New disabled accessible toilets will be installed on all 96 of the trains, along with improved seating arrangements for passengers with reduced mobility.

The changes are being made to make sure the trains, which were built in the early 1990s, comply with new regulations stipulating that carriages must be accessible to disabled passengers by 2020.

Doors on the 75 Class 165 Turbo trains operated by Chiltern will be overhauled and repainted as part of the project.

Chiltern's trains are expected to remain in use between London Marylebone, Bicester and Banbury well into the 2020s.

Some are also likely to operate on the planned East-West rail link between Oxford, Bicester and Milton Keynes,

By William Crossley

from its opening in 2017 until 2019, when electric trains will take over. Then, most of the fleet is expected to be transferred to routes in the West Country.

Angel Trains, the company which leases the Turbos to Chiltern, has arranged for the work to be carried out by Railcare at its workshops at Wolverton, in Milton Keynes.

Kevin Tribble, Angel Trains' chief operating officer, said: "This contract demonstrates our commitment to the enhancement of our assets throughout their life. The Class 165 and 166 vehicles will be the first of Angel Trains' fleet to conform to the regulations on accessibility."

Railcare will also carry out overhauls on Chiltern's Class 168 Clubman trains, which are owned by the Portbrook leasing company. These trains are already equipped with disabled-accessible toilets.

Revealed: the county's Red Nose recipients

SUPPORT for victims of sexual abuse, sessions to get youngsters into basketball and almost £6m to keep a masterpiece at an Oxford museum are among county good causes which got £11.1m in Lotto cash last year.

The National Lottery has revealed where the cash went in Oxfordshire last year to 114 county projects.

Among those which benefited was Oxford Sexual Abuse and Rape Crisis Centre, which got £10,000 for a group sessions project.

Service manager Natalie Brook said the centre would probably not have been able to get funds elsewhere.

Oxford HOOPS Basketball Club got £6,160 to employ coaches and buy kit for school sessions to introduce youngsters to the sport.

Head coach Franky Marulanda said: "It is the introduction of a new sport for them that will help them with head, eye and feet co-ordination. It also introduces an element of discipline."

"They have been responding really, really well, the heads and teachers love it. The kids seem to be having a great time."

Barracks Lane Community Garden Project got £9,610 for a herb-growing project.

Garden trustee Fiona Mullins said: "We would not have the beds without the money. They are the structural basis of the garden. The previous beds were falling apart and rotting."

It has also help set up a link with TimeBank, a project that helps volunteers swap their time for projects, such as an hour's help for an hour in return.

Heritage Lottery Fund (HLF) gave £6m to the Ashmolean Museum to help keep Édouard Manet's portrait of Mademoiselle Claus in the UK.

It had been bought by a foreign buyer for £28.35m but an export ban stopped it going abroad, offering it instead to the Ashmolean for £7.83m.

Museum head of development Tess McCormick said the success was "critical to the success of the museum's bid to save the picture for the nation".

She added: "Following the announcement of the HLF's lead support, the public response to the fundraising campaign was overwhelming."

All projects which got cash last year, can now enter an application for the National Lottery Awards 2013.

Actor John Barrowman, who presented last year's awards, said: "National Lottery players in Oxford should be proud of the difference they are making to people in the area."

■ Sister of murder victim to speak at festival discussing good and evil

Why I forgave killers

THE sister of one of the victims of serial killer Fred West will be among speakers discussing good and evil at a "faith fest".

Marian Partington will speak at The Bloxham Festival of Faith and Literature, which launches tomorrow and runs for three days.

The festival has been expanded after a successful trial in October 2011 at St Mary's Church. This year the event will be held at Bloxham School.

Its theme is "devices and desires" and seeks to explore good and evil in the media, arts and business.

Oxfordshire-born Mrs Partington will discuss the limits of forgiveness with Michael Lloyd, the chaplain at The Queen's College, Oxford.

Her 21-year-old sister was snatched from a bus stop in 1973. Her remains were found at the Gloucester home of Fred and Rosemary West in 1994.

Mrs Partington wrote to Rose West – who had been convicted of ten murders – to say she "didn't feel hostile towards her".

This year's programme at the festival will also feature former Metropolitan Police Commissioner Lord Blair in a discussion on crime as entertainment.

He will be joined on Saturday by crime writer James Runcie and Jeany Spark, who plays Linda

By Banbury reporter Oliver Evans

Wallander in the TV thriller Wallander.

Former Poet Laureate Sir Andrew Motion will discuss whether virtuous characters in literature are "boring" later that day.

Novelists Patrick Gale, Alex Preston and Jasper Fforde will also give talks.

The Friday-to-Sunday event will also count five bishops among its speakers, including the Bishop of Buckingham, the Rt Rev Alan Wilson.

He will discuss good and evil in the media with Guardian journalist Andrew Brown on Saturday.

That evening, there will be a performance by the Rambert School of Ballet and Contemporary Dance and the North Cotswold Chamber Choir.

The festival has been run with support from the Diocese of Oxford, faith festival Greenbelt and the Church Times.

Co-director Sarah Meyrick said: "The positive response to the first event at St Mary's in 2011 showed that there was a real appetite for a festival that would bring together faith and the arts."

She said: "We are delighted that Marian Partington is going to a speaker. She is an extraordinary person with an extraordinary story."

"It's hard for any of us to imagine what she went through – but her determination to find forgiveness is inspirational."

The festival was the idea of MP and Anglican Sir Tony Baldry. He said: "It is fantastic to see the return of the Bloxham Festival of Faith and Literature. This is a literary festival which has a theological slant and it therefore stands out from all other literary festivals."

Apprentices urged to join kitchen competition

BUDDING bakers are being urged to rise to the challenge of the Great Apprentice Bake-off.

The competition, which is only open to people currently serving apprenticeships, will test their culinary skills.

Cake experts will judge the efforts based on criteria, such as taste and presentation.

Oxfordshire County Council's cabinet member for business and communications, Nick Carter, said: "Events like this give the apprentices a chance to meet their peers and share experiences, and also allow them to try something outside their usual vocational work.

"The aim is to hold an enjoyable event that will also raise important funds for a worthy charity."

It is being run in aid of Macmillan Cancer Support, and is modelled on the charity's World's Biggest Coffee Morning, which raised more than £13m in 2012.

Oxfordshire fundraising manager for Macmillan, Sara Rawnsley, said: "We hope this unique twist on the usual format will provide an opportunity for local talent to be demonstrated and give the public a spectacle to enjoy."

The bake-off will be held at County Hall, Oxford, on Monday, March 11, and is open to any apprentice who is a resident or working in Oxfordshire. Email: kerri.rook@hittraining.co.uk

Hunt for attackers after three are hurt

A FIGHT that broke out in a kebab van queue in Chipping Norton left three people in hospital.

Two men and a woman were taken to Horton General Hospital, Banbury, with serious injuries following the incident which occurred in Horse Fair at about 11.40pm on Saturday, February 2.

The two male attackers drove away from the incident in a red hatchback.

One was described as white, about 30 years old, 5ft 10in tall, of heavy build with a shaved head.

The other was also described as white, with a shaved head and of heavy build.

Anyone with information is asked to call the police on 101.

TB testing on cattle to focus on county

OXFORDSHIRE has been added to a Government list of counties where annual testing of cattle for Bovine TB will take place.

It is part of a series of wide-ranging changes made to the way the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs carries out its surveillance of the disease.

While the change does not mean Oxfordshire is a high-risk area for Bovine TB, it does mean the county is at risk of geographic spread in the short- to medium-term.

Defra has written to farmers informing them of the changes, which mean every cow in Oxfordshire will be tested annually.

For more information, contact the local office of the Animal Health and Veterinary Laboratories Agency on 01284 778150.

Falling roll forces final decision

Jobs to go as special school plans closure

A SCHOOL for children and young people, who are suffering from profound disabilities, is to close with the loss of nearly 140 jobs.

Action for Children confirmed that Chipping Norton's Penhurst School, which supports 13 youngsters at the moment, will shut its doors for the last time in May.

The ratio of employed staff – including teachers, teaching assistants, residential care workers and specialist therapists – is high because of the severe nature of the children's disabilities.

The charity launched a consultation with staff, families and the public about the proposed closure in October last year.

Barbara Street, Action for Children operational director of children's services, said the full range of alternatives had been considered.

She said: "We fully understand that many people will be saddened by this decision, but despite our best efforts, the school has become unsustainable.

By Tom Jennings

"Nationally, there has been an increasing move away from providing care this type of care and, instead, placing more children and young people nearer their local community.

"As a result, the number of young patients at Penhurst has been steadily falling. The school ran up a substantial deficit last year.

"Based on current projections, there will only be five children and young people at the school within two years."

She added: "We are deeply saddened to have to make this announcement.

"We would not have made this decision if we had any viable alternative."

Ms Street said the charity was working with local authorities to find alternative placements for the children. She also said Action for Children was trying to find alternative employment for the affected staff.

The school began life as an orphanage on the same site in 1904.

■ County's ambulance service fails to meet targets for the third year running

Anger at 999 response

AMBULANCES are still failing to reach Oxfordshire patients within a crucial eight-minute life-saving window.

The Government says patients with immediate life-threatening injuries must receive medical help within that timeframe at least 75 per cent of the time.

But in outlying rural areas, South Central Ambulance Service has failed to meet these targets over the past three years. Ambulance bosses said the situation was even worst last December, when patients were only reached within eight minutes in West Oxfordshire and South Oxfordshire 52.8 per cent of the time.

Prime Minister David Cameron labelled the figures as "unacceptable". Local councillors said the service would be called in for "a grilling". But the ambulance service argued that it had received unprecedented demand last year and now plans to buy more ambulances to cope.

Mr Cameron said: "Clearly the time it takes to respond to a life-threatening event is critical and measuring response times is one important indicator towards the effectiveness of the service."

"It is not acceptable that any area, rural or otherwise, suffers a disadvantage. Poor service must be rectified as a matter of urgency."

Chipping Norton county councillor Hilary Biles said: "These are appalling figures – and the situation has not improved at all.

"But the ambulance response times do not reflect on the paramedics. They do a fantastic job."

She said the ambulance service was putting patients' lives at risk and said more ambulances needed to be located in rural areas.

Mrs Biles had to wait 50 minutes for an ambulance about three years ago, after her doctor called one to her home in Shipton-under-Wychwood for what she said was a life-threatening emergency.

West Oxfordshire District Council has twice issued a vote of no confidence in South Central Ambulance Service over the last four years.

Councillor Louise Chapman said: "We need to get someone from the ambulance service along for a grilling. Whether an emergency is in a rural village or a city, a life is a life."

Councillor Pete Handley said: "We are very concerned about this. This lack of performance has been going on for such a long time. It is not good enough. People who live in the rural areas are getting a raw deal."

South Central Ambulance Service said it saw "unprecedented" demand during 2011 and plans to purchase more ambulances to cope.

Across the year, demand for its ambulances rose by 13 per cent – from 17,443 incidents in 2011 to 19,759 last year.

But it failed to explain how the recent demand had affected three years of failing to meet the targets.

Operations director Steve West said: "The level of activity

County councillor Hilary Biles

we have had is unprecedented. It has never been this busy in Oxfordshire. That is really stretching us, but we are looking to respond to that challenge."

He said the ambulance service was looking to bring in more ambulances – he added discussions were still ongoing about how many – and treat more patients at the scene to avoid unnecessary trips to hospital.

The service has also increased overtime for front-line crews, which includes paramedics, ambulance technicians and emergency care assistants.

Mr West added: "Ambulances are deployed into West Oxfordshire every single day and the fact there is no station there makes no difference."

"It is the overall number in Oxfordshire that will enable us to prioritise that response into West Oxfordshire."

He said he did not know the cause of the rise in demand but officials were investigating it.

A Department of Health spokesman said: "When people need help, they should be able to rely on a safe, fast 24/7 ambulance service."

"We expect every ambulance trust to look at the data for their region and make improvements to ensure they are performing at the highest level."

Chris Taylor had to wait 63 minutes for an ambulance after his partner went into premature labour OX50760

Dad tells of birth 'nightmare'

DAD Chris Taylor, 24, had to deliver his twin boys after an ambulance took almost 24 minutes to arrive at their Chipping Norton home on January 21.

His 26-year-old partner, Rachel Biston, suffers with cyclical vomiting and was ill in bed when she went into labour, two weeks prematurely.

Mr Taylor was talked through delivering the twins, Alfie and Archie, on the phone by the ambulance service – but one of his sons was not breathing when he was born.

Mr Taylor added: "Archie was blue in the face when he was born. He was as good as dead.

"I didn't know what to do. I was talking to the paramedics on the phone and rubbing the baby's back and then some mucus came up and he was awake and alive."

"The ambulance should have been there – but it wasn't."

"It was a nightmare. Archie could have died."

Mr Taylor added: "They have no response around here because they do not have any ambulances based in Chipping Norton."

The ambulance service said it was called at 1.04am and dispatched the nearest ambulance, which was in Banbury. But snow and ice meant the journey took 23 minutes and 47 seconds.

The emergency was first categorised as Category B, meaning serious but not life-threatening, requiring a 19-minute response. It was not recategorised.

A further two ambulances were dispatched to the family, one from Cirencester, arriving at 2.19am, and one from Banbury, arriving at 1.37am.

Spokesman James Keating-Wilkes said: "The extremely icy and snowy weather obviously had an impact on the response times."

Both babies and their mother are now home and are doing well.

The Anglo-Saxon brooch which is going on display at Banbury Museum

Buried beauty

A RARE Anglo-Saxon brooch, which was unearthed in Oxfordshire, has gone on show in Banbury.

The piece of jewellery, found in West Hanney in 2009, has been loaned to Banbury Museum until April 27 by Oxfordshire County Council's museum service.

The brooch, which dates from the 7th century, was discovered during a metal-detecting rally in West Hanney. An excavation on the site then revealed the skeleton of a woman, thought to be aged about 25, and two small pots.

Cherwell District Council deputy leader George Reynolds said: "We're very lucky to be able to put this artefact on display at Banbury Museum.

"It's a beautiful object of both national and local importance and follows on from similar historic displays at the museum that have proved very popular."

Museum Plus Club members will be able to attend a special viewing of the brooch and a talk from Oxfordshire Museum Service curator of archaeology Dr Christopher Ferguson next Thursday at 7.30pm.

■ Eleven county schemes get the go-ahead

£8m boost for flood protection

By Freddie Whittaker

HUNDREDS of homes will be protected from flooding after an £8m boost for flood defences across Oxfordshire.

Eleven new flood defence schemes have been given the go-ahead in the county, thanks to the Government cash.

The projects range from new barriers to stop homes flooding, improvements to drains and refurbishments for weirs.

Officials said the schemes, all set to begin this year, would help protect more than 400 homes in the county.

The Government had been criticised by the Labour Party for not spending enough on flood defences – but the schemes have been welcomed by many victims of previous floods.

The 11 schemes in Oxfordshire are part of a nationwide raft of 93 announced last week.

The Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs hopes to be able to protect 164,000 homes by 2015, through flood alleviation measures worth a total of £294m.

Environment Secretary Owen Paterson said: "The 93 schemes given the green light will bring huge relief to tens of thousands of homes and businesses that have lived with the fear of flood waters hitting their doors. They can get on with their daily lives and work knowing that there are well-built defences.

"This is also a message to the business community. By building defences that will unlock the economic potential of once blighted land, we are saying to them that it is safe to come and set up. This will create jobs and grow the economy, so we can compete in the global race."

Shadow Environment Secretary Mary Creagh said: "Flooding is the biggest threat the UK faces from climate change, yet the Government will spend less on flood defences next year than Labour invested in 2008. Every £1 invested in flood defences saves £8 later and prevents untold human misery."

You can do it

■ Suzanne hopes to help others who go through the agony of a stillbirth

Mum plans a marathon as her mission

SUZANNE Kentish was shattered when she was forced to leave the Horton Maternity Hospital empty-handed – following the stillbirth of her baby daughter.

But now the mum-of-two is planning to run the London Marathon to fund a new service, which would give other bereaved parents treasured hand and foot casts of their lost infants.

By Debbie Waite

Three years ago this week, Mrs Kentish, from Banbury, went into the Horton to have a baby daughter. But unbeknown to her and her 39-year-old husband, Mark, their child had suffered a knot in her umbilical cord in the last days of her pregnancy, ending her life before it could begin.

Instead of leaving hospital with a new sister for their two-year-old son, Jack, the Kentishs left empty-handed and inconsolable. And the baby they called Sophie became one of the 17 infants who are stillborn or die shortly after birth in the UK each day.

Three years on from their ordeal, the Kentishs have another son, Samuel, now two – but their sense of loss for Sophie never diminishes.

So, Mrs Kentish, 38, is now preparing to run the Virgin

Suzanne and Mark Kentish with their children, Samuel, two, and five-year-old Jack

London Marathon to fund a new service which will provide free hand- and foot-castings of stillborn babies for bereaved parents.

Mrs Kentish, who is a professional photographer, said: "Sophie was stillborn at 39 weeks. It was the most difficult, heart-wrenching thing I have ever had to go through.

"We were encouraged to spend as much time as possible with her after I delivered her and we had photographs of her to take away. But nothing can ease the loss you feel of not taking your baby home with you.

"Later, I met a woman who had also lost a baby at full-term. But she had hand- and foot-casts of her baby. I envied her deeply.

"She had been given the casts at Stevenage Hospital. I looked into it, and could not find it available anywhere else. But I thought it was an amazing idea."

Mrs Kentish approached the Horton Maternity Hospital about raising money to provide a hand- and foot-casting service for other parents.

She said: "The Horton and SANDS (the stillbirth and neonatal death charity) were so supportive and helped me so much after Sophie died. I was thrilled when they were keen to be involved. That's when I decided to do the London Marathon – to raise the money.

Mrs Kentish will be joining the 35,000 other runners taking part in the marathon on Sunday, April 21.

The Horton then hopes to use her fundraising cash to trial the hand- and foot-casting service later this spring.

Clare Pagett, the delivery suite manager at the Horton, said: "This will make a real difference to those who experience stillbirth. Suzanne's positive desire to help others is inspiring. We wish her every success with the London Marathon and would like to thank her for all she is doing."

Mrs Kentish added: "I want to do what I can to help others. There is nothing I can do to replace the loss they will have or to help them grieve any easier, but I can help them have more lasting memories of the all-too-brief time they may have with their child."

Sir Tony's last wish

MEDICAL students in the distant future could find themselves scalpel-deep in the body of Banbury MP Sir Tony Baldry.

Sir Tony has announced he will be leaving his body to the Oxford University anatomy department.

He said: "I have a body. When I die, it's not going to be much use to me.

"On a practical level, I think you will find that anatomy students nowadays don't find it easy to hold of cadavers on which to practise. As I explained in the House, there is quite a lot of me on which to practise. I suspect the liver of anyone who has served more than 30 years as an MP is probably worthy of anatomical study.

"Most importantly, I would want the medical students to be able to confirm that, engraved on my heart, is the phrase 'Keep the Horton General'."

Land-owning charity tells of 'breach of trust'

Hunt faces ban on land access

MEMBERS of the Heythrop Hunt will be denied access to National Trust land in Oxfordshire and Gloucestershire.

The Trust has announced it has not renewed the hunt's licence to hunt on land at Chastleton, Oxfordshire, and Sherborne Park estate, Gloucestershire.

The decision comes after the hunt and members Julian Barnfield, 49, of Chipping Norton, and Richard Sumner, 68, of Salperton, admitted at Oxford Magistrates' Court a total of 12 charges of unlawful hunting with dogs.

Barnfield was fined a total of £1,000 and ordered to pay £2,000 costs and Sumner was fined a total of £1,800 and ordered to pay £2,500 costs.

Both men were also ordered to pay a £15 victims' surcharge. The Heythrop Hunt was fined a total of £4,000, costs of £15,000 and a £15 victims' surcharge.

A Trust spokesman said: "Whilst the illegal activity in this case did not take place on land we own, we consider it to be a serious breach of trust. The conviction has given us major cause for concern about how the hunt runs its activities, which is why we will not renew the hunt's licence at the end of March."

By Freddie Whittaker

● The Heythrop Hunt will resume hunting after vets confirmed an outbreak of equine herpes had been contained.

The hunt cancelled its meets after the virus, which can be life-threatening, was found in four horses stabled at a yard in Gloucestershire about 12 days ago.

Several members of the Heythrop Hunt keep horses at the yard.

On Friday, the hunt said: "The vets have confirmed that the equine herpes virus has been contained within one yard, so they are happy for hunting to start again."

"Please continue to be vigilant with your horses, and if in doubt, telephone your vet."

‘Less people should go to prison and money diverted into monitoring’

Judge laments the erosion of his powers

TOO many criminals are being jailed and the Government is not doing enough to help, one of Oxfordshire's most eminent judges has said.

His Honour Christopher Compston has stepped down from Oxford Crown Court after 12 years with a warning that people with mental health problems were being turned into criminals by a system which offered little hope of rehabilitation.

And he said that judicial powers to offer less punishing sentences were being eroded by the Ministry of Justice.

The 72-year-old, who lives in North Oxfordshire, became known on the circuit for his reluctance to jail offenders, instead offering them a chance at redemption.

He said: "There are far too many people in prison. Of those people, far too many have mental health problems. Far too many are plain inadequate. I think just to punish and do nothing to rehabilitate is folly. It is daft.

By Mark Taylor

"The Government should send fewer people to prison and divert some of the prison money into monitoring and mentoring these people.

"There is a small hardcore of people who are bad and dangerous, and even evil, but most criminals are essentially inadequate. Many of them have a horribly difficult time in life.

"I feel very sorry for them, because they are so ill equipped."

Judge Compston became a circuit judge in 1986 and sat in London for 15 years before spending 12 years at Oxford.

He has sat on mental health tribunals, in family courts and in the High Court throughout his long career.

Over this time he said his belief

AT WORK: His Honour Christopher Compston

in prison-gate mentors formed.

Every prisoner released in England and Wales would have a designated helper, a friend or volunteer, to help get their life back on track.

During a farewell ceremony at Oxford Crown Court he said: "When I was appointed in 1986 I had a distant cousin. He stood up and said may I warn you about the steady erosion of judicial independence, and how right he was. Inch by inch it has been eroded."

Judge Compston was hailed by contemporaries and colleagues in law during the address.

In it a sentence he passed at Oxford Crown Court in 2011 was given as a notable example of his disdain for quickly locking criminals away.

He spared three men, two from Wallingford and one from Drayton St Leonard, jail following their attack on a thief who had robbed an autistic man.

His line "To send you to prison you will only come out worse, not better," was held up as example of his strength of character.

And his words were welcomed by a man who spent much of his early life in trouble with the law.

Steve Walker, a worker at the Ley Community, turned his life around after 15 years of addiction to drugs and became a published author.

The Bicester resident said: "Something different badly needs to be done to get people off the merry-go-round of prison.

"A lot of the people I met were not bad at all.

"Their lives simply took a wrong turn and they found themselves stuck."

■ Company puts up householders' annual bills by £18 to £354

Inflation-busting rise for county water rates

By Jamie Brooks

WATER bills in Oxfordshire are to increase by an inflation-busting 5.5 per cent.

The increase, announced by Thames Water for the 2013/14 financial year, puts the average annual bill up by £18 to £354.

Regulator Ofwat said the average household water and sewerage bill in England and Wales was forecast to increase by 3.5 per cent, or about £13, from April.

Inflation is currently three per cent, according to the Retail Prices Index.

But Thames Water's average annual bill is still slightly lower than the national average bill of £388.

Chief executive Martin Baggs said that the firm had kept the bills "as low as it could".

The company will invest more than £1bn per year on improvements to its water pipes.

Mr Baggs said: "We are aware of how tight household budgets are at the moment, so we understand that keeping bills as low as possible is important."

"We are providing an essential service at an average cost of just under £1 a day for each household."

"With each of these homes using on average more than 600 litres a day, that is exceptional value."

Festival ringing the changes

A succession of free live gigs kicks off next week at the Bell Inn in Adderbury for Festibell.

The launch event on Monday evening will see the return by popular demand of Gerard And The Watchmen.

The band hails from the outskirts of London and performed at last year's Cambridge Folk Festival. They are fronted by singer songwriter Dave Gerard Lawrence and play a mix of lilting non-traditional folk on an eclectic range of instruments; banjo, harp and mandolin to name but a few, all washed over with Lawrence's strong bluesy toned vocals. Gerard and co will be supported by local talent Matt Carter who is set to release his debut EP next month and is hailed as one of Festibell's top picks to keep an eye out for over the course of this year.

Festibell intends to 'ring in the best musical talents' throughout 2013 at this popular village pub.

Adderbury, renowned for its love of music and live events has been buzzing with anticipation for this new music venture since the pub hosted an all-day music festival last October. The original Festibell was a huge success with feedback suggesting it might become a regular Adderbury tradition.

Landlord Hugo Edmonds was hot off the mark to ensure that the best new musical acts passing by on tour would be invited through the Bell's doors for their own feature gigs.

Festival organiser Rebecca Lee said: "Each gig night will have a new musical flavour to enjoy and we can't wait for the response.

"There will definitely have been something for everyone before the year is out! You can 'like' us on facebook to find out more Facebook.

com/festibell, or if you are a new band waiting to be discovered please leave your details as we'd love to hear from you."

Universal entertainment

■ IF a good giggle and top-rate entertainment is your kind of Valentine's Day treat, the first appearance in Banbury by 4 Poofs and a Piano is a date not to be missed. The four mega-talented, shimmering, camp guys play The Mill Theatre tonight for the launch gig of their 2013 comedy tour.

4 Poofs and a Piano need no introduction for Jonathan Ross Show fans; they were the resident house band for the prime-time BBC TV show for nine series.

Now they are taking their unique brand of music and comedy around the country and the Banbury show gives everyone the first chance to see the new, bigger, louder, harder, longer 4 Poofs and a Piano!

"We're back, in a whirl of pizzazz, wit and glittering charisma with a new line-up and a show that promises to be the best ever!" said original member Big Dave Wickenden.

"Joining me is the fabulous Graeme Clark who promises to bring a notable level of butch twinkle to the proceedings and the brilliant, gorgeous Ian Lilley who will bust a move while hitting that top 'B'.

"Ian is younger than the other Poofs – considerably younger – and cute and talented – and young! This makes the other Poofs hate him a little bit already and we may decide to sell him to Angelina Jolie if he's not nappy-trained by July!

"Last but not least, the new 4 Poofs and a Piano features the legendary Bobby Crush, whose fingers are so fast and light that he could vajazzle a ferret while playing Rachmaninov! Four Poofs and a Piano comes to The Mill Theatre, tonight, 7.30pm. Tickets £15 Call 01295 279002.

LOUD: Four Poofs and a Piano

■ Every day from Saturday (Feb 16) to Sunday (Feb 24), Xscape Milton Keynes stages free family entertainment, including your chance to dress up like a Hollywood movie star and meet some truly universe-famous movie characters including Darth Vader!

Xscape's centre mall's state-of-the-art 5D cinema is also offering youngsters the chance to take part in the future of film, every day from 11am-10pm (Entry charges apply). With a glamorous stilt-walking movie host, red carpet wardrobe department, take part in movie-themed art and craft workshops from 12-5pm daily, and keep your eye out for extra surprise guests. xscape.co.uk/miltonkeynes

Movie that looks behind those Hitchcock scenes

HITCHCOCK (12A, 98 mins)
Drama/Romance. Anthony Hopkins, Helen Mirren, Scarlett Johansson, Danny Huston, Toni Collette, Jessica Biel, James D'Arcy, Ralph Macchio, Michael Stuhlbarg, Michael Wincott, Kurtwood Smith. Director: Sacha Gervasi.

In a career spanning more than 50 years, London-born filmmaker Alfred Hitchcock redefined the cinematic landscape with his diabolical and twisted thrillers.

Audiences screamed and covered on cue, and Hollywood courted his enviable talents behind the camera.

Yet for all that success and public adulation, he never won an Academy Award as Best Director and had to put his personal fortune on the line to commit arguably his crowning achievement to celluloid.

Director Sacha Gervasi pays tribute to the iconic film-maker in this compelling biopic based on the book Alfred Hitchcock And The Making Of Psycho, by Stephen Rebello.

Adapted for the screen by John J McLaughlin, Hitchcock focuses on the fractious relationship between the film-maker (Sir Anthony Hopkins) and his screenwriter wife Alma Reville (Helen Mirren) during the turbulent period when the couple risked everything to self-finance "a nice, clean, nasty little piece of work" called Psycho.

Studio bosses balked at distributing the film and the universally-feared Motion Picture Production Code voiced its concerns about the infamous shower scene.

"The Code will absolutely not permit you to show a knife penetrating a woman's flesh," warns administrator Geoffrey Shurlock (Kurtwood Smith).

So, Hitchcock strikes a deal to shoot the film's love scene to Shurlock's exact specifications, in exchange for keeping the shower scene intact.

Alma remains a rock of support through the turmoil, and she offers valuable advice about killing off the heroine halfway through the film.

"I think it's a huge mistake," she opines. "You shouldn't wait until halfway through... Kill her off after 30 minutes!"

When principal photography eventually begins, Hitchcock nurtures an obsession with his blonde leading lady, Janet Leigh (Scarlett Johansson).

His devotion to Leigh comes at the expense of his relationship with fellow actress Vera Miles (Jessica Biel), who was once the apple of his twinkling eye.

In response, Alma entertains flattering overtures from fellow writer Whitfield Cook (Danny Huston), which fans the flames of her husband's jealousy.

Pressures on and off the set take their toll and Hitchcock is haunted by the spirit of Ed Gein (Michael Wincott) – the notorious serial killer who was the inspiration for Norman Bates.

He falls ill and Alma is forced to step in behind the cameras, galvanising the cast and crew, as studio bosses circle the project like vultures.

Hitchcock is a handsomely crafted portrait of tortured genius, distinguished by scintillating

Helen Mirren, as Alma Reville, and Sir Anthony Hopkins, as Alfred Hitchcock, in a scene from the film Hitchcock performances. Mirren oozes determination and steely resolve as a trailblazer in an industry dominated by men, while Sir Anthony disappears beneath Oscar-nominated prosthetics.

His mannerisms perfectly capture the awkwardness and insecurities of a visionary who struggled with his weight.

Hopkins delivers the lip-smacking one-liners with obvious relish.

"My murders are always models of taste and discretion!" grins Hitchcock at one point.

Gervasi's picture is almost as delicious and elegant.

Service provided by IMS Leeds LS1 8LB. Calls cost 60p per minute at all times

ARIES

Mar 21-Apr 19

There is so much more open to you romantically than there was this time last year. So why do you insist on thinking everything down is a bit of a mystery. I know that part of you plays you don't deserve any happiness but you're wrong Ariels and confrontations you have this weekend can prove to you why you are. Phone me now to hear why you need to be careful what you text.

0906 585 4360

LIBRA

Sep 23-Oct 22

Don't be influenced by your past so much. There comes a time when you have to wipe the slate clean and learn to trust in people again. If not, it can make for a very bitter Libran my friend. News of someone from far away gives you reason to plan a journey. Admitting your true feelings in love can save a lot of game playing. Give me a call so I can help you achieve your ambitions.

0906 585 4366

TAURUS

Apr 20-May 20

Make sure you adopt a slow pace with all new relationships at this time. For a sign who is usually renowned for their slow approach, you are acting decidedly out of character. News of a new opening in your career gives you reason to do some serious thinking. You've known a change was necessary for some time and this is your chance to introduce one. Ring now for a long term view.

0906 585 4361

SCORPIO

Oct 23-Nov 21

Old ways are creating bad habits for future situations and this would be an ideal week for you to try to create new ways of dealing with the stress in your life. New faces in business know your name. Use this week to arrange meetings and confrontations with them. You can both do a lot for each others careers. Ring now and I'll help shape your future.

0906 585 4367

GEMINI

May 21-Jun 20

Children seem to be more prominent than usual and you may even find yourself having to make a decision for one. Remember to think outside the box. Their needs are not the same as yours. Flirtations take a turn for the serious on Thursday. Give me a ring now to hear why it's worth making family a priority at the weekend. Phone now for a full forecast.

0906 585 4362

SAGITTARIUS

Nov 22-Dec 21

Don't be side-tracked from your plans by well meaning but somewhat wild friends. If you're serious about what you want to do with your life then you need to stick to your guns. An immature side to your nature on Friday could see you ruining what you've worked hard to build up. Give me a call now to hear why it's worth playing fair in business throughout this month.

0906 585 4368

CANCER

Jun 21-Jul 22

Be prepared to help and support others in their work this week. It is only by showing you can work as part of a team that you will be able to find out if there is a place for you in their future plans. A lack of energy on Friday could see you cancelling something you'll regret, so try to get your energy reserves in place before then. Phone me now to hear how Mars favours reconciliations.

0906 585 4363

CAPRICORN

Dec 22-Jan 19

Education and schooling are highlighted now and if you were thinking of going further into study then you have the backing of the stars to do so. Venus promises flirtations which could turn into something more. Make sure you don't present yourself as someone you're not. You'll regret it, as your feelings start to run deeper if you do. Ring me now to make the most of this month's layout.

0906 585 4369

LEO

Jul 23-Aug 22

You find yourself in an array of roles this week as you adopt the character which is best suited for the faces you'll be meeting up with. Just don't put on too much of an act for new faces who could be put off by any pretence. It's the real you they'll have to fall for so make sure it's the real you they meet. Call now to hear how long distance work is lucky for you this month.

0906 585 4364

AQUARIUS

Jan 20-Feb 18

Too much time spent self absorbed has led close friends to distance themselves from you. Use the supportive aspects from Saturn this week to get back on track with them. Pick up the phone, give them a call. Their response is sure to pleasantly surprise you. Loose talk this week about a friend's life will come back to you. Ring me now to hear where your time and energy is best spent.

0906 585 4370

VIRGO

Aug 23-Sep 22

You have let someone down and they haven't taken the way you've treated them very well. Rather than hide away and sulk, try to face them before Thursday and have your say. If they know the real reason you pulled out then they're likely to be far more understanding. A lost dream is given an ignition by a family member. Call now to hear how legal dealings are prominent soon.

0906 585 4365

PISCES

Feb 19-Mar 20

Don't repeat gossip that you hear in the workplace. It is imperative that you try to remain the consummate professional over the coming days. You won't realise it yet, but you're being looked over for an impressive offer, so make your words and actions constructive ones. Dressing well on Friday does much for your career. Ring me now to expose a liar in your life.

Banbury United striker Nabil Sharif pulls a goal back for the home side during their 4-2 defeat by Gosport Borough at Spencer Stadium on Saturday

Picture: Ric Mellis

Four-goal blow for Banbury

BANBURY United slipped to a home defeat in the Premier Division at Spencer Stadium on Saturday.

The home side's Chris Lait was denied by Nathan Ashmore in the Gosport goal, before the visitors went ahead through a Rory Williams penalty after Joseph N'Guessan fouled Daniel Woodward.

Five minutes later, Aaron Cook headed in Gosport's second.

Banbury clawed a goal back just before the break when Lait's pass found Nabil Sharif, who found the corner of the net from an acute angle.

However, Banbury's hopes of a revival ended shortly after the

Country classic

BEAUTIFUL grounds, with a paddock and stables, are the main attractions of a period home near Bicester.

Wodards, in Fritwell, is set in 2.5 acres of landscaped gardens, including formal lawns with heavily planted herbaceous borders, a cherry tree walk, copse, orchard and kitchen garden.

There are extensive stables which include six horseboxes, stores, a stable yard, tack room and workshop.

By Gill Oliver

The stone-built house has a reception hall with log burner, drawing room with open fireplace, sitting/family room, dining room and kitchen.

There are seven bedrooms, spread over the first and second floors, and the master suite has windows on three sides plus an ensuite bathroom.

Planning permission exists to convert stores into a double garage and agents say it has plenty of potential. The property is on the market for £1.35m.

Damian Gray, of agents Knight Frank, said: "It is extremely rare to find a house of this size that is not listed, in such good grounds and with so much potential.

"Wodards offers a fantastic opportunity for someone who would like one of the best commutes – in the form of Bicester to London."

Luxurious Ampera has positive future

By David Duffy

VAUXHALL'S Paul Ames spent ten patient minutes talking me through the whys and wherefores of piloting Vauxhall's electrically-powered Ampera before letting me loose on the road.

Not that it is at all difficult to drive. Indeed that's the point. Electric cars usually come with complications and the Ampera has none, and that not only takes some explaining, but quite a little convincing.

Unlike other electric vehicles (EV), the dramatically-styled Ampera is the first that is free of electric car 'range anxiety' – a familiar feeling of dread as the miles rapidly clock down and you try to mentally calculate where you need to be to ensure you are close to a charging point when the juice runs out.

Electricity powers the wheels of the Ampera at all times, with a lithium-ion battery pack feeding a 150 horsepower electric drive unit, delivering between 25-50 miles of battery-powered electric drive and zero emissions.

But what sets the Ampera apart from other EVs on the market is its range extender, a 1.4-litre, 86 horsepower, petrol-fuelled generator produces enough electricity to power the electric motor – but not the wheels – delivering a total driving range of up to 360 miles. There is more good news, for as well as zero vehicle excise duty, zero congestion charge and a 50 per cent reduction in company car tax, the Ampera only costs about £1 to fully charge.

The beauty of the Ampera is that because it doesn't rely on a public charging infrastructure for propulsion, it can continue to be driven normally on electric power if a charging point isn't available.

Enough about the power source, what is it like to live with? In short it is a thoroughly practical, everyday car, seating four adults in luxurious air-conditioned comfort.

It is also quiet, eerily quiet, especially when whirring around town. That presents a problem in itself as it possible to sneak up on cyclists and pedestrians who have not a clue that you are there. To help with that a warning system has been installed on the left-hand steering column stalk that emits a gentle beep. Performance out of town is impressive, reaching a top speed of 100mph and accelerating from 0-60mph in just 8.7 seconds. Ride is geared towards comfort, but the Ampera handles with a surprisingly sharp edge, despite the huge and weighty battery pack that runs down the spine of the car.

Prices for the Ampera start from about £30,000. Now all we need to see is a similarly brilliant vehicle at a third of the cost and motoring in the 21st century has a truly positive future.

Japanese engines top reliability table

GERMAN cars are not as reliable as many people believe, according to a survey by aftermarket warranty provider Warranty Direct.

Audi, Volkswagen and BMW, including its subsidiary Mini, all performed poorly for engine failures in the past year, with Japanese engines proving by far the most reliable.

The only engines to have failed more often than Audi's in the past year were those from the now defunct MG Rover group, while Mini finished third from bottom.

BMW and Volkswagen featured seventh- and ninth-worst respectively in the powerplant scale of shame.

At the top end of the table, Japan took the plaudits as Honda and Toyota proved to be the manufacturers with the most reliable power units, while Mercedes-Benz upheld some German honour by taking third place. Warranty Direct sampled 50,000 live policies to reach the conclusions, which revealed that one in 13 MG Rover engines had big problems, while just one in 345 Honda engines had a serious issue. The engine failure rates therefore range from 7.88 per cent to 0.29 per cent.

The study also highlighted the cost of engine failures. An engine failure on a Range Rover Vogue recently led to Warranty Direct's highest claim – £12,998.46 – while one dealer quoted £14,853.60 to repair an engine on a Range Rover Sport after it failed catastrophically. Warranty Direct managing director Duncan McClure Fisher says: "Engine failures are the biggest fear for any motorist as they're the ones that can lead to the most astronomical costs because of the parts and hours or labour required to fix them.

"The number of failures may be low compared to areas such as axle and suspension damage but engine repairs almost always result in costs reaching the thousands for motorists who aren't covered by a warranty."
